GO TO THE RESCUE.

Don't Wait till it's Too Late—Follow the Example of a Norway Citizen.

Rescue the aching back.
If it keeps on aching, trouble comes.
Backache is kidney ache.
If you neglect the kidneys' warning,
Look out for urinary trouble—
diabetes.

This Norway citizen will show you
how to go to the rescue.

Oscar I. Pitts, living on Cottage street, Norway, Me., says: "Several years ago I began to suffer from an acute attack of kidney trouble. I had caught a severe cold which settled on my kidneys and brought on terrible pains in the small of my back. There seemed to be a congestion of my kidneys and it was only with great difficulty that I was able to pass the secretions. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, and deciding to try them, procured a box from Stone's drug store, and began their use. They helped me from the first, and after using a few boxes I was cured of the attack and have not had any trouble with my kidneys since. I give Doan's Kidney Pills
my highest endorsement."

A Tale of Labrador.

I shall never see them more
On the shores of Labrador,
But as heart is sad and sore,
Since the day they sailed away;
Out upon the briny deep,
Where sea monsters play and leap
And around the dories sweep,
Like birds in sky.

Three lone souls were they, my all,
Whom my guidemon had taught when small
How to swim and how to travel
On the coast of Labrador;
Ah, they were a trio grand,
Six-foot tall and they stand,
Large of heart and large of hand
As any in all Labrador.

But the mad and cruel sea
Swept them all away from me
Out into eternity.
They the fish-wife's boy and stay,
And they never said me nay,
Always loyal unto me,
Now they wait for me more
On the coast of Labrador;

O they were so kind and true
With their eyes so deeply blue
That they wait for me more,
Ay, each day I loved them more.
Ah, the sea it tells no tales,
Swallows bodies, swallows souls,
But it leaves out widow's wails
That she hears in the night.

Their graves are the briny deep,
Where sea monsters crawl and creep,
And the merman round them keep,
Guard and watch alive;
But my heart will nevermore,
On the sea it waits for me,
Till with joy as in days of yore,
Kre they sailed away.

Kitchen Keeping in Order.

"Cleanliness as regards cooking utensils is one of the first requisites of a successful kitchen," said the lecturer and demonstrator, who was beginning her year's course of instruction in cooking. "Utensils are the preliminaries to cooking; therefore a good quarter of an hour may well be devoted to them."

In brief, the suggestions which followed were: All pans and pots should be cleaned at once or soon after their use, and by no means left over until the next meal or perhaps the next day. Utensils in general when they are taken from the stove should be filled with boiling water, to which a pinch of soda has been added except in the case of aluminum and blackens. By then the utensils should be rinsed well, carefully cleaned, dried and set away. The pans, however, which have been used for sweet things—cake and the like—should be rinsed with cold water before they are cleaned with boiling water.

Frying pans ought never to be cleaned with water but rather wiped out thoroughly with pieces of soft paper until the paper itself is clean after this rubbing process. If food particles are burned on to the frying pan rub them off with a little salt. Agate or enameled pans should never be scraped, as nothing breaks into the glaze so quickly as scraping.

As for copper pans, continued the demonstrator, unless they can be exceedingly well looked after they must be purchased with great reserve. Given proper treatment, however, they are most satisfactory on account of durability.

Enameled pans are constantly growing in favor, but to be of real service they must be of the best quality, otherwise they stain easily and crack even more easily. Earthenware fire proof utensils of various sizes steadily gain favor nowadays. When new they should be filled with cold water and placed on a slow fire gradually increasing the heat. Being glazed they are readily kept clean.

Like most utensils except iron ones they should never be left on the stove or in the oven empty. Eggs and vegetables are especially good when cooked in the dishes, particularly vegetables as the color of green things is retained in a remarkable way. Moreover, vegetables may be with safety left standing in earthenware pans.

Fine wire sieves for straining sauces, purées and similar compounds should be cleaned with a good stiff brush and without soap. A little fine sand or some of the favorite cleansers is often a help. The sieves should be dried quickly and thoroughly.

Ending her introductory talk, the speaker said: "Remember two things, keep the bottoms of all your pots and pans as immaculately clean as the inside. Nothing proves the good housekeeper more than this. And second, make a thorough overhauling of the kitchen utensils at least once a year—every six months is better; then discard those which are beyond their usefulness and replenish as you need, for ready utensils go a long way toward an effective kitchen regime."

The Telepost.

Just how the citizens of Portland, Me., and Boston, Mass., and important intermediate towns have privileges in use of means of communication not yet enjoyed by the rest of the country. They have the telepost, and as teleposting is the latest and highest development of scientific telegraphy they are naturally pleased to have the first use of it. This line has been in operation only a few weeks. This system is said to give much better satisfaction than the telegraph. It has cost thirty cents to send a telegram from Portland to Boston, but a ten word "telecard" is sent for ten cents; a twenty-five word telegram for a fifty word telepost for twenty-five cents.

Short Talks on Farm Subjects.

If there is one factor greater than another in high farming, it is the making and saving of all the manure of all farm animals. Also, a great amount of trash on the farm can be turned to account as valuable fertilizer by saving this trash, applying it to the land and turning it under to decay. In these places this vegetable refuse is of no value, but rather a nuisance. By applying it to the land as a fertilizer the nuisance is removed and tillable soil is made better.

Do not burn the autumn leaves but rake them up and place in the horse and cow stalls. They make the very finest of bedding and quickly decompose in the fields. The hog and sheep lots are another rich source for excellent fertilizers. Rake and clean them out to frequent intervals and get the refuse on the land where it will do good, instead of harm and discomfort if allowed to remain in the lots. This may seem like small work but it is not; it is the largest work that can be done in the farm. It is the royal road to success in farming. It is the main secret of those who build and climb to the highest in agriculture. The farmers who neglect these small large things are the ones who are always poor and grumbling about chance and poor luck in the business. Save the manure and make the dollars; it is the only way.

It seems to me that one very common mistake made by the farmer and his wife is living so much in the uncertain future and not enough in the present. Planning and working to save the farm for the children is all right; but if we want to save the restless boys and girls for the farm, we must study as we go along how to make home a half-way pleasant place for them. As we grow older we are inclined to forget we once were young. The young folks, overflowing with vitality, must have amusement. If the parlor is closed at home and harmless games discouraged, they will find social life elsewhere; and when old enough to earn their living, the city will be more alluring, because they have no pleasant memories of the home farm life.

When I started out after I was married I thought I had to buy about every kind of machine anybody had ever used on a farm. But my father took a crimp in me one evening by asking me to make out a list of what I must have and let when it was all figured up the total was over $1,700. As I had less than $700 after my live stock was paid for I promptly began to back up. Then father advised me to buy a manure spreader, the plows, harrows and a mower and wait a year for the rest. "Cannot the manure spreader be left out," I asked. "No," replied father, "that is the most important thing you will have. If you make good use of it you can soon have enough money to buy the rest." And of course he was right.

Died From Burns.

Mrs. Frank Russell of Rumford, whose dress caught fire while she was building a fire with kerosene, died Saturday. She used kerosene to start a fire in her kitchen stove and her apron caught fire. She ran out of doors and called for help. Several men rushed to her aid and smothered the flames with their coats. She was so badly burned, however, that she died Saturday.

She was about 35 years of age and leaves a husband and one child aged two years. Her husband was formerly a member of the firm of Russell & Peacock who conducted a kindling wood factory in Virginia.

HEBRON, 22: Naval Reserves O.

Hebron defeated the Naval Reserves
at Hebron in a hard fought battle by a score of 22 to 0. The Naval Reserves proved this was largely instrumental in keeping the score down. In the first half Hebron played football in its old way and succeeded in pushing the ball over but once. In the second half by using forward passes and outside kicks, Hebron rushed the ball for long distances, and succeeded in scoring two more touchdowns, besides kicking a goal from the field.

The features of the game were the playing of Winslow and Curtis, the former running 63 yards for a touchdown,
while Rites and McCrum played well
for the Naval Reserves.

Destroys Hair Germs

Recent discoveries have shown that falling hair is caused by germs at the roots of the hair.
Therefore, to stop falling hair,
you must first completely destroy these germs. Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, will certainly do this. Then leave the rest to nature.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Formula with each bottle Show it to your doctor
Ask him about it,
then do as he says

Recent discoveries have also proved that dandruff is caused by germs on the scalp.
Therefore, to cure dandruff, the first thing to do is to completely destroy these dandruff germs. Here, the same Ayer's Hair Vigor will give the same splendid results.

The merchants who occupy the stores in Odd Fellows' Block, because of the steps and sidewalks in front of their place of business being used as a loafing place evenings, have put Chas. Titcomb on as night watchman.

A special town meeting has been called for Saturday, November 21, at 2 p. m., to see if the town will vote to raise $500
to pay the outstanding highway bills and authorize the treasurer to hire the same and place on the assessment of 1909.

The County Commissioners have been in session at the county buildings this week. Only routine business was transacted. Next month will be held the final meeting of the present board and Mr. Fauscoe will be succeeded by a new member.

Paul Cleveland Thurston of Bethel
was elected manager of the Bates college football team for 1909. He has commendably filled the position as assistant manager for several seasons.

How to Make a Room Look Larger.
To increase the apparent size of a room there is nothing better than the judicious use of mirrors.

Suppose that you have a glass about five feet high and two wide, in a wooden frame, you may employ it most decoratively in a sitting room.

Mount it about a couple of feet from the floor and arrange in front of it a row of ferns, palms or other foliage plants, concealing the pots with a handsome box filled at the top with fresh moss.

The mirror should be placed either where it will reflect the view from the window or else opposite the entrance of the room, so that when the door is opened one may see the hall or passage beyond reflected in it. Of course the room will not be any larger really,
but the fact that it will appear so is a great point, for, as a friend of my own says, "If we cannot have a pleasant reality at least let us have a pleasant illusion."

I know one house where the dining room is long and dark, and the only window gives a very insufficient light.
Here an immense improvement was effected by placing a good mirror over the sideboard at the end of the room and the window.

This reflected the light and the landscape seen from the window, with the result that one was almost deluded into the belief that the room had two windows, and one certainly was not conscious of the want of an outlet.

HIRAM.

Everything Booming.

Well, everything is over and everything is a going some now. The freight rates have gone up ten per cent. There was a partial break at our station. It seems the party was frightened away after removing the putty from one pane of glass.
There are three or four nigger shows in the place. Yes, prosperity reigns.

The schools close, Saturday, for a short vacation.

Fred Jameson and son have gone into the woods at Swift River, N. H.

deliver the Thanksgiving sermon.

Mrs. Fritz Goddard has received news of the death of her brother in British Columbia, and her brother Samuel has started for his brother's home.

Middle Intervale.

Dennis Casey, our soldier friend, is here on a furlough. He was a resident of Boston. He served three years in the War of the Rebellion in 3d U. S. Cavalry, returned to Boston from the West
in 1897, worked at his trade shoemaking until about thirteen years ago, when he went to Togus, the National Soldiers' Home, and after a few years became acquainted with one of his comrades sisters in Bethel, where he has spent considerable time of late years as he spies on her.

He has been here for some time acquainted with Comrade Capt. C. C.
Pratt's widow of South Paris, where he spent some time previous to her death,
and found her to be a woman of rare intelligence, of a kind heart. She sent for him and he has been here since, but regrets that he could not go to her then.

How to Mark Your Linen.
The most satisfactory method of marking clothes that go to the laundry is with a rubber stamp bearing your name. Each separate article may thus be stamped with the least possible
trouble, and the result will be a legible marking. The name need not be put in a conspicuous place. In fact, it might be tucked away in some odd corner where it will not show, yet is sure proof of ownership. The stamp is inexpensive, and one may buy a pad and indelible ink at small cost. It is a very economical idea.

How to Clean a Sewing Machine.
To keep a sewing machine in good condition it needs an occasional cleaning with kerosene. Saturate the machine with kerosene and then run the machine briskly for several minutes without thread, of course. This will loosen all old oil and dust, which should be wiped away with a soft cloth until the machine is perfectly clean. Then oil it with machine oil.

How to Make Pumpkin Pie.
Boil and press through a sieve a quart of pumpkin. Add two quarts of milk. Sweeten it to taste, adding sugar and a little nutmeg. A piece of rind of the pumpkin is still hot. Last, add six eggs well beaten and pour the mixture into the prepared crust, and bake rather slowly. This will make two large pies.

Desecrated Brightness.

Chopped From Our Exchanges.

Juries are often predisposed to "look it" to corporations, and it usually takes a long time to get evidence to prevent them from doing so.

Going up in balloons and flying machines may in time become an exact science, but the existing laws will probably remain largely a matter of luck.

William Jennings Bryan can perhaps take some comfort in the reflection that the Roosevelt policies which were so enthusiastically endorsed by Taft's election, are most of them good old-fashioned Democratic policies, which the Nebraska statesman carelessly neglected to have copyrighted.

Already the goose-bone prophet is out with the prediction that we are to have thirty snowstorms this winter. A few more or less will not so very much matter.

The agony is over; let us breathe easy and be thankful we are permitted to breathe. Pay your bets please.

best in town.

C. Ford and son have bought G. A.
Chandler's farm, the one formerly owned by Charles Field.

Ben Doar and His Beans.

"I never hear anyone talk of farming
on an extensive scale without thinking of Ben Doar of Livermore Falls and his beans," said Angus K. McDonald last week. "I met Ben Doar of Livermore Falls, as he always told us, in Central America. He was a cowboy there and he was a great character. He had a so-lary of telling anything and the boys always listened to him."

"Somebody got to talking one day of a big farm he once worked on and Ben Doar of Livermore Falls said that he owned a good farm at home. He said that in the spring everybody wanted and wondered what Ben Doar would plant and that one spring he decided to make beans his principal crop."

"Everybody wondered, he said, what Ben Doar was planting so many beans for and when he came home time they found out. Ben Doar said he got through hoeing his beans and when he harvested his beans they were saying:
"What will Ben Doar do with all his beans?" In short, he said, that all Livermore Falls talked of nothing for months except of Ben Doar and his beans."

"Then he stopped and someone said:
"Ben, how many beans did you plant?"
He looked at him in his quiet way and drawled out: "Maybe you fellows won't believe me, but I planted over two quarts of beans."

What is a Good Newspaper.

A good newspaper tells the news as faithfully and truthfully as it can, without fear and without favor, and comments on it with the best intelligence it can command.

A good newspaper is in league with all men and women who think, and with all the agencies that strive for the happiness of the people.

A good newspaper shields no wrong
that ought to be exposed and stops at no truth that ought to be uttered.

A good newspaper does not lend itself
to the making of strife between citizens, neither rages like a demagogue nor weeps like a charlatan.

A good newspaper has ideals, believes in progress, and wins its way by courage, plain speaking and fair dealing.

A good newspaper assembles each day
as much of the good things that are done in the world as it can find and no more of the foul than it must of necessity publish.

A good newspaper has political opinions and may belong to a party, but it cannot be an organ and keep the high faith
of the best journalism.

A good newspaper knows no boss, bows
to no petty satrap of office and owes no allegiance but to that which it believes to be true.

A good newspaper is run on business principles, and should make money and prosper like any other business, but probably won't if that is its sole aim.

A good newspaper takes cheerful view of the world, is kind to human failings
and helps by its own efforts to bring them
than by ranting and scolding at them.

I expect you will receive another copy of the Three-Times-A-Week
this week. Read it and let us know if you want it with this paper for the year to come send $2.20 to this office.

NORTH HARTFORD.

Farm Buildings Destroyed by Fire.

The farm buildings of Oscar E. Turner were totally destroyed by fire, Nov. 12, at 4 p. m. Mrs. Turner was away at the time so the origin of the fire was unknown but is supposed to have caught in the chimney. There was a small amount of the furniture saved and all of the live stock with the exception of two pigs, which were burned. There were thirty tons of hay or more besides potatoes, apples, and everything burned, and also all of their clothing. The family are stopping at Israel Gammon's for the present.
It was very hard for Mrs. Turner as she

HARRISON.

A Harrison Boy Honored.
Judge George H. Buck of Redwood City, Cal., was born in Harrison and is the son of a public service is a record of which one might justly be proud. For 25 years Judge Buck has stood in the line of public service, and at no time has even a thought of official unfaithfulness or neglect of duty been raised against him.

George H. Buck is a native of Maine, where he was born in 1847. He had the good fortune to start in life with a broad and liberal education. During the years of his earlier manhood he had charge of Gorham's Seminary and Academy in his native state. Later he entered the office of Woodbury & Ingalls in Boston, Mass., as a student of law, and was admitted to the bar in that state in 1871. For some years he was associate attorney for the Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Lafayette Railroad, which position he resigned in 1874. Turning his steps westward he came to California and located in Redwood.

In 1888 he was elected District Attorney, which position he held through successive re-elections until 1890, when he was elected Judge of the Superior Court. This office he has been re-elected to up to the present, in a strong Republican camp.

For more than a year Judge Buck has, by appointment of Gov. Gillett, presided over Department 4, of the Superior Court of San Francisco on account of the illness of Judge Hebbard. The work that he has done there is the manner in which he has conducted the business of his court has won him the encomiums of all the legal fraternity who have had actions before him.

Judge Buck is an exceedingly fair jurist and in civil cases has rarely had a ruling reversed by the State Supreme Court. While in criminal actions his decisions have never failed to stand.

Marks-Emerson.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Smith on North Main street, Fryeburg, was the scene of a pretty home wedding at 8 o'clock on Friday morning, Nov. 17, when their oldest daughter, Lena Gertrude Emerson, was united in marriage to Dr. Hopkinson Marks of Milan, N. H. Only the relatives and friends were present.

Dr. Fred S. Woods of Portland was the best man and Abbie L. Smith, a sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Alexander Reynolds of Milan, and the singing service was used. The floral decorations of chrysanthemums and evergreens were appropriate to the season and tastefully arranged. The bride was wearing a traveling suit of blue. Many tokens of remembrance were received from friends.

Mrs. Emerson is one of the most popular young ladies of the town; she has been active in the work of the Congregational church, in the Literary club and in the postoffice. Dr. Mark is a graduate of the University of Maine and of the Bowdoin College, and he is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. They left on the 10 a.m. train for Portland. They will be at home in Milan after the first of January. All their friends wish them many years of happiness.

This may be a newspaper story, but it is said that "Bryan is preparing to run again."

ALBANY.

Hunting in the Wild River Region.
The following is the way certain persons hunt the wild river region. One man is stationed at a stump while the others drive the deer towards him. On their return they found him fast asleep and that the deer had been all around him, and if the other men had not returned as they did, they would be wearing mourning for their lost companion and a lot of venison gone to waste. Moral: It behooves all hunters to keep their eyes and ears open while deer hunting.

DENMARK.

Fred Alexander and Gene Richardson shot three deer, Monday; also Perley McKusick shot one, and Leon Ingalls and Harold Perkins got one, Monday.

The community was shocked last Sunday evening at the telephone message reporting the sad death of one of our young men, Harold Jewett, only son of Algernon and Maria Jewett. He has been working in Portland for some time. His remains were brought home, Monday evening. He was about 25 years of age.

$25,000.00

As a guarantee that the story of Father John's Medicine is absolutely true, the sum of $25,000 will be given to any charitable institution if it can be shown otherwise.

Half a century ago, when the late Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., recommended to his parishioners and friends, the prescription that had restored him to health and strength, the people named it Father John's Medicine.

Its power to make strength and build up the body explains why it cures Colds and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

SWEDEN.

Two Deer Stories.

A short time ago Charlie Forrest and Harry Moore started one morning early to get a deer. They went a quite distance together then separated when they were about one-half mile apart. Charlie saw a deer close by. He takes good aim and fires, down goes the deer but is up in an instant, runs a few rods and stops. Charlie bangs at him again and down drops the deer but is up again in a jiffy and comes towards Charlie. He fires again at his breast and the deer drops again. Charlie then thought that he had the deer and commenced to yell "Harry, Harry, come quick." Harry heard the shouting and yelling and started on a three-minute gallop. He was soon with Charlie and expected to see one or more nice deer dead. As soon as Harry could get his breath to speak he said, "What did you shoot at?" "A deer," said Charlie. "Where is he?" said Harry. "Well, he is running in the woods but I knocked him down three times." "D— you," said Harry, "I am a good mind to knock you down, yelling the way you did and then find no deer. I thought a big moose had you, tossing you on his horns." The deer is still running.

Walter O. Gordon got a nice buck deer a short time ago. Walter had to aim at the deer's stern end. The ball passed nearly the whole length of the deer but did not drop him. Away he went and Walter gave chase. When the deer came to the brook he could not quite jump it which checked the deer some. Walter, with the spring of a tiger, struck on the opposite bank. He fired four shots on the run and two of them hit the deer. Just before they got to the woods the deer turned his head and saw that Walter was so near him. He gave one bound and dropped dead, in his judgment, through fright.

At the close of the first half of our school in Black Mountain district all of the neighbors visited it that could. It is taught by Merton Taylor of Bridgton. The scholars showed that they had received good training from their teacher. Chauncey Poor rendered some nice music on his violin. The teacher gave all the scholars a treat. Josie Bryan received the prize for good behavior and perfect lessons which will be good news for her father who is in Boston.

Alton L. York of West Peru has filed a petition in insolvency, liabilities $291.50; assets $10.00.

Dog Detectives.

Year by year there are trials of "police dogs" in Germany and Austria, where many hunting dogs are trained and bred for police purposes and where dogs have become a branch of the police organization. In Germany there is a society called the Association for Furthering the Breeding and Employment of Police Dogs and ideas on the subject are exchanged, all experiments with dogs being carefully recorded.

Years of thorough and painstaking study were devoted to this subject before suitable breeds of dogs were obtained and proper methods of working the dogs were discovered. Originally the Brunswick was the headquarters of the German police dog men and when canine assistance was required one of the officers at once set out with a dog. These officers and dogs often traveled long journeys going as far as Paris and Constantinople on special occasions.

The German trainers soon came to the conclusion that not even the most perfect dog would carry a line three or four days old when he was not in a perfect condition as he would not be working fresh because he has to do far more mental than physical work. Further, a dog brought to a country in which the conditions are different from those of his home cannot settle down to the work at once with his mind quite fresh for the work. Artificial means to "revive" the scent are not always handy, and even then will fail if the dog is not in perfect working condition.

Quite a revolution, however, set in when the association referred to above began to distribute dogs among the police men and watchmen. These animals got so accustomed to their masters and the rural conditions of their districts that the slightest change from the normal state provoked the suspicion while in their daily patrol, and any amount of cases are published every week where such well trained dogs lead their masters to places of outrages which up to that moment were still unknown. The police officers back to live, murders were found in time to bring such cases were still warm and so of course was the scent. The criminals were at once hunted and stopped not many miles off, waiting for a chance to escape. Tramps hid themselves in thickets could not enjoy a quiet hour, and many a "want-ed" was discovered by the help of these dogs.

It is an infrequent occurrence that an outrage is not discovered within 24 hours after the commission of the crime. The "test dog" is at once called and unless he has not already stopped a suspicious individual during one of his patrols he will pick up in case of the criminal after having—in case of fatal outrages—been brought to the corpse.

Since police dogs were introduced there have been comparatively few outrages of justice in cases of violence. The certainty of detection has had a good result and the criminal statistics of that town show that during the last two years no single murder was committed there or within 20 miles around the municipality.

Miss Ant's Toilet.

She's Very Fussy and Very Clean—Carries Traveling Set.

Insects are usually connected with uncleanness in the minds of most persons, yet many insects are extremely neat in their personal habits. The ant performs a scrupulous toilet every day. She uses brushes, combs, sponges and other implements in keeping herself tidy and never fears of misjudging them, since nature has conveniently attached them in permanent positions on her body.

A "hobo" ant was never seen for the insect hates dirt like a Dutch housewife. Working it the earth inevitably before her person, but she takes a wash and rubdown so often that few particles of foreign matter cling long to her hairy self.

One of the ant's implements is the tongue, says Dr. E. C. McCook, in "Harper's Magazine." Around the sides of this organ curves a series of hard ridges which make it suitable for use as both sponge and brush. Ants lick themselves clean with their tongues.

The natural comb on the leg is another important toilet implement. It is on the tibia, and has a short handle, a stiff back and sixty-five elastic teeth. It is a fine toothed comb, and there is a comb on the leg right opposite. There are other combs in handy positions, as the serrated upper jaws through which the ant may draw her legs and so clean them. Also the mouth secretes a liquid which might be compared to hair oil, and which is rubbed on the membrane drawn through the mandibles.

Ants wash about the same as human beings, before beginning the day's work or retiring to sleep, or when the accumulation of dirt makes them uncomfortable. Sometimes an ant quite in the midst of a busy stunt of nest building, leaves her fellow workers and goes off in a corner to clean herself. She combs and brushes diligently until she feels that she is in a decent condition again, and then rejoins her laboring companions.

A study of the toilet process in artificial nests with glass sides shows how thorough and conscientious the insect is in her personal care. There are numerous attitudes during the process. When cleaning the head and face, the ant turns her head to one side. The fore leg is raised and passed over the face, while the head is slowly turned to expose both sides to the treatment. The opposite leg may be brought into use. For combing the back hair the head is dropped low and the leg comb sweeps through the tufts of hair from the neck forward. At intervals the leg is drawn through the jaws to moisten it or wipe off the comb. Odd positions are taken to clean the abdomen and the stinging organs. The body may be bent in a semi-circle; sometimes an acrobatic act will suspend herself by the hind legs to get the abdomen in a convenient position. Frequently one or two ants will perform friendly toilet offices for a fellow insect, who gratefully reclines while it is being scrubbed and combed.

A Law Making Woman.

We all have met her, the woman who lays down the law, and most of us regret the meeting.

No matter what is under discussion she has her opinion and does not hesitate to proclaim it. That she knows nothing of the subject makes no difference in her vociferousness.

Her voice is usually rasping, her words staccato and her emphasis abrupt. She does not intend to be disagreeable, but the effect is not altered by intentions.

The irritation of a disturbed hornet's nest is mild compared to the feelings aroused by the layer down of the law. Even when in the right her wisdom is hated on general principles.

She can stir up more opposition than a motion to raise taxes. You go out of your way to thwart her and make yourself uncomfortable doing what she does not wish to protest to.

Silent protest is the only open pugnacity in the attitude of her hearers. The good-natured sufferer reels when the town regulator strikes a scrapper.

Tact is not her long suit. The more reason there is for silence the louder is her expression of opinion. Her knowledge of where her own business ends is scant.

It is the layer down of the law who can be depended upon to say the wrong thing every time. She it is who makes it her business to take a meek little wife to task for her husband's shortcomings or widows a breach by telling both combatants their duty.

If she only knew how great was her power! Most people find it difficult that they are slow to think themselves capable of including the rest of mankind in their managing.

Seeing both sides is not her chief characteristic. Her way is the right way, and woe to the one who differs! Arguing is as futile as the fight with old age.

You might stand her better if only she were ever in the wrong. To be able, however, to convince the regulator that her opinion is unfounded we would cheerfully consent to be "bossed" the rest of our days.

She would be easier to bear if her rulings were from the height of superiority. Too often the director of others is of meek and manners of others is far from being invulnerable herself.

Bernice Heald returns to her school after two weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Mark Charles is being visited by her father and her brother, Charles Emerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Seavey visited her mother on Saturday and went to Grange meeting.

Seath Webb and wife were at Dexter Charles' and attended Grange; also Leon Charles and wife.

Eben Flint and wife and Dart Weeks from Mountain View were visitors at Grange and stopped over with Mr. Flint's sister, Mrs. Preston Chandler.

Chester Eastman is able to get around the house on crutches, and on Saturday, the 14th, he went out and traveled around on the ground for the first time since his injury.

District Deputy H. O. Haley visited Eagle Grange, the 14th, and Maud Tilton from Moultonboro. Mountain View Grange was invited but only three responded to the invitation. There were nine visitors from Fryeburg and two from Sweden Grange, all of whom were gladly welcomed. The third degree was exemplified after which there was a short program of readings and music and a surgical pantomime. After closing the Grange a fine oyster and pastry supper was served.

Henry Enman and Will Powell have been to Norway for horses. Mr. Powell left Old Bill but brought back the one he purchased this spring.

Andover Water System.

At a special town meeting held in Andover it was voted to accept the proposition to pay for the use of 20 hydrants at a cost of $800 per year for 20 years, provided the system is installed by the first of next September.

The water will be taken from Stony Brook, about two miles above the village, where a concrete dam and reservoir will be built. This elevation will give about 95 pounds pressure. A company will soon be formed.

Lincoln's Birthday.

The superintendent of every school district in the United States will be asked by the Lincoln Centenary committee of New York to have Lincoln's Gettysburg address read to the children in their schools at precisely noon on Feb. 12 next, the 100th anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth. Arrangements were made for the New York city celebration, the Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott being selected to deliver the oration at the day at the memorial meeting to be held in one of New York's large halls.

Commencing Monday the 900 employees of the Oxford Paper Co., were put on a ten hour system instead of three tours of eight hours each, as they have worked the past three or four years. Notices to this effect have been posted. They will work from 7 to 12 a. m., and 1 to 6 p. m., the daily wages to be increased five per cent.

PARIS HILL.

Glad to See Her Back.

Mrs. C. C. Allen nee Sadie Hersey of Lincoln Centre, returned to her home last Tuesday after spending a week at H. P. Hammond's. She called on many friends. Mr. Hammond carried her to Buckfield to spend the day with an aged aunt, Mrs. Henry Hersey. She has not been up this way to stop any for about 10 years. Everyone was very glad to welcome her back.

Mrs. Loren Merrill is nursing her brother in Boston. Mr. R. P. Hammond takes her place as organist in the Baptist church. Miss Luce assisted in the singing, Sunday.

The first thing that met our eyes Sunday morning was about 6 inches of snow and still snowing and blowing. I think there were a great many "oh dears" expressed.

Annie Farris called on two of her nearest neighbors Saturday, the first time she has walked out. She is gaining quite fast. The young ladies of the place gave her a surprise party Monday afternoon. Dainty refreshments were served, music and a social time.

LOCKE'S MILLS.

Roy Brown is home from his work in Berlin, N. H.

Arthur Herriek of Bethel is coaching the basket ball team.

Mrs. Lena Rand is spending a few weeks with relatives in Portland.

E. R. Cummings and J. C. Littlefield are on a hunting trip up East B. hill.

Guy Hemmingsway has returned to work in the spool mill after a week's hunting trip.

J. A. Pratt and niece, Laura Pratt, of Portland, visited Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Bartlett the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bartlett and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bartlett of East Bethel spent Sunday with F. A. Frost and wife.

The Sunday school will give an entertainment at Mr. Abram Hall on Thursday evening of this week. A short farce will be given, also recitations, singing, etc. Coffee, cake and home made candies will be on sale.

Chas. Reed entertained about 30 people in Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Coolidge's pleasant home last Friday evening, with his phonograph. Refreshments of apples and confectionery were served during the evening and all had a most enjoyable time.

ABOUT CHECKS

A bank is not liable to the holder of a check until it accepts or certifies the check, and a bank is not bound to make partial payment on a check if the drawer has not sufficient funds to his credit to make full payment.

If a depositor draws several checks aggregating more than he has standing to his credit, the bank pays them in the order of presentation, without regard to dates or numbers, until the depositor's credit is exhausted. The bank may refuse to honor checks subsequently presented.

Every check must be endorsed. The endorsement should be on the back of the check as near the left end as possible in order to make room for subsequent endorsements.

These are a few facts about checks not as generally known as they should be. The convenience and safety of having a checking account at THE NORWAY NATIONAL BANK OF NORWAY, MAINE, should also be known and appreciated by every farmer and business man in this section of the state.
